BROWN, Judge.

Plaintiff Ruby D. McCrorey seeks judicial review of a final decision of the Commissioner of the Social Security Administration (SSA) in which he denied Plaintiff's applications for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Disability Insurance Benefits (DIB) under Titles XVI and II of the Social Security Act. This Court has jurisdiction to review the Commissioner's final decision pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g).

Following a review of the record, the Court AFFIRMS the decision of the Commissioner and DISMISSES this matter.

ADMINISTRATIVE HISTORY

Plaintiff filed her applications for SSI and DIB on April 25, 2003, and alleged a disability onset date of October 1, 2002. Tr. 72-73.¹ The applications were denied initially and on reconsideration. An Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) held a hearing on June 11, 2007. Tr. 623-46. At the hearing, Plaintiff was represented by an attorney. Plaintiff and a vocational expert (VE) testified.

The ALJ issued a decision on June 21, 2007, in which he found Plaintiff was not entitled to benefits. Tr. 20-32. That decision became the final decision of the Commissioner on April 11, 2008, when the Appeals Council denied Plaintiff's request for review. Tr. 7-9.

Plaintiff appealed the decision of the Commissioner to this Court. On April 22, 2009, Judge Malcolm F. Marsh issued an Order for Remand in which he remanded the matter to the Commissioner to "re-evaluate the medical source opinions of record, particularly the opinion by Dr. James Harris"; to "re-contact Dr. Harris for clarification, if necessary"; to "re-evaluate the claimant's credibility"; and to "re-evaluate the claimant's residual functional capacity pursuant to SSR 96-8p." Tr. 685.

On October 2, 2009, the ALJ conducted a new hearing at which Plaintiff, a medical expert, and a VE testified. The ALJ issued a decision on October 13, 2009, in which he found Plaintiff is able to perform "jobs that exist in significant numbers in the national economy." The ALJ, therefore, concluded Plaintiff is not disabled and, accordingly, is not entitled to benefits. Tr. 653-54. Plaintiff did not request review of the ALJ's decision by the Appeals Council. The decision of the ALJ, therefore, became the final decision of the Commissioner.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff was born on September 8, 1960; was 46 years old at the time of the first hearing; and was 49 years old at the time of the second hearing. Tr. 47. Plaintiff has a high school education. Tr. 98. Plaintiff has past relevant work experience as a pizza deliverer, sales clerk, fast-food worker, tele-marketer, and website designer. Tr. 662.

Plaintiff alleges disability due to "chronic pain syndrom [sic] - back pain," an anxiety disorder, depression, and "nerve damage in lower back." Tr. 92.

Except when noted, Plaintiff does not challenge the ALJ's summary of the medical evidence. After carefully reviewing the medical records, this Court adopts the ALJ's summary of the medical evidence. See Tr. 660-62.

STANDARDS

The initial burden of proof rests on the claimant to establish disability. Ukolov v. Barnhart, 420 F.3d 1002, 1004 (9th Cir. 2005). To meet this burden, a claimant must demonstrate her inability "to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which . . . has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months."

42 U.S.C. § 423(d)(1)(A). The Commissioner bears the burden of developing the record. Reed v. Massanari, 270 F.3d 838, 841 (9th Cir. 2001).

The district court must affirm the Commissioner's decision if it is based on proper legal standards and the findings are supported by substantial evidence in the record as a whole. 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). See also Batson v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 359 F.3d 1190, 1193 (9th Cir. 2004). "Substantial evidence means more than a mere scintilla, but less than a preponderance, i.e., such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion." Robbins v. Soc. Sec. Admin., 466 F.3d 880, 882 (9th Cir. 2006)(internal quotations omitted).

The ALJ is responsible for determining credibility, resolving conflicts in the medical evidence, and resolving ambiguities. Edlund v. Massanari, 253 F.3d 1152, 1156 (9th Cir. 2001). The court must weigh all of the evidence whether it supports or detracts from the Commissioner's decision. Robbins, 466 F.3d at 882. The Commissioner's decision must be upheld even if the evidence is susceptible to more than one rational interpretation. Webb v. Barnhart, 433 F.3d 683, 689 (9th Cir. 2005). The court may not substitute its judgment for that of the Commissioner. Widmark v. Barnhart, 454 F.3d 1063, 1070 (9th Cir. 2006).

DISABILITY ANALYSIS

I. The Regulatory Sequential Evaluation

The Commissioner has developed a five-step sequential inquiry to determine whether a claimant is disabled within the meaning of the Act. Parra v. Astrue, 481 F.3d 742, 746 (9th Cir. 2007). See also 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520, 416.920. Each step is potentially dispositive.

In Step One, the claimant is not disabled if the Commissioner determines the claimant is engaged in substantial gainful activity. Stout v. Comm'r Soc. Sec. Admin., 454 F.3d 1050, 1052 (9th Cir. 2006). See also 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(I), 416.920(a)(4)(I).

In Step Two, the claimant is not disabled if the Commissioner determines the claimant does not have any medically severe impairment or combination of impairments. Stout, 454 F.3d at 1052. See also 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1509, 404.1520(a)(4)(ii), 416.920(a)(4)(ii).

In Step Three, the claimant is disabled if the Commissioner determines the claimant's impairments meet or equal one of a number of listed impairments that the Commissioner acknowledges are so severe they preclude substantial gainful activity. Stout, 454 F.3d at 1052. See also 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(iii), 416.920(a)(4)(iii). The criteria for the listed impairments, known as Listings, are enumerated in 20 C.F.R. part 404, subpart P, appendix 1 (Listed Impairments).

If the Commissioner proceeds beyond Step Three, he must assess the claimant's Residual Functional Capacity (RFC). The claimant's RFC is an assessment of the sustained, work-related physical and mental activities the claimant can still do on a regular and continuing basis despite her limitations. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(e), 416.920(e). See also Social Security Ruling (SSR) 96-8p. "A 'regular and continuing basis' means 8 hours a day, for 5 days a week, or an equivalent schedule." SSR 96-8p, at *1. In other words, the Social Security Act does not require complete incapacity to be disabled. Smolen v. Chater, 80 F.3d 1273, 1284 n.7 (9th Cir. 1996). The assessment of a claimant's RFC is at the heart of Steps Four and Five of the sequential analysis engaged in by the ALJ when determining whether a claimant can still work despite severe medical impairments. An improper evaluation of the claimant's ability to perform specific work-related functions "could make the difference between a finding of 'disabled' and 'not disabled.'" SSR 96-8p, at *4.

In Step Four, the claimant is not disabled if the Commissioner determines the claimant retains the RFC to perform work she has done in the past. Stout, 454 F.3d at 1052. See also 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(iv), 416.920(a)(4)(iv).

If the Commissioner reaches Step Five, he must determine whether the claimant is able to do any other work that exists in the national economy. Stout, 454 F.3d at 1052. See also 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(v), 416.920(a)(4)(v). Here the burden shifts to the Commissioner to show a significant number of jobs exist in the national economy that the claimant can do. Tackett v. Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1098 (9th Cir. 1999). The Commissioner may satisfy this burden through the testimony of a VE or by reference to the Medical-Vocational Guidelines set forth in the regulations at 20 C.F.R. part 404, subpart P, appendix 2. If the Commissioner meets this burden, the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(g)(1), 416.920(g)(1).

ALJ'S FINDINGS

At Step One, the ALJ found Plaintiff has not engaged in substantial gainful activity since her October 1, 2002, onset date. Tr. 658.

At Step Two, the ALJ found Plaintiff has severe impairments of chronic pulmonary insufficiency and lumbar degenerative disc disease. Tr. 658.

At Step Three, the ALJ concluded Plaintiff's impairments do not meet or equal the criteria for any Listed Impairment from 20 C.F.R. part 404, subpart P, appendix 1. The ALJ found Plaintiff is able to lift and to carry 20 pounds occasionally and ten pounds frequently; to sit six hours in an eight-hour work day; to stand or to walk two hours in an eight-hour workday "provided that she is allowed to periodically alternate sitting and standing to relieve pain or discomfort"; occasionally to stoop, to kneel, to crouch, and to crawl. Tr. 659. The ALJ found Plaintiff should not climb and should avoid exposure to extreme temperatures as well as to fumes, smoke, and dust. Tr. 659. Finally, the ALJ found Plaintiff is limited to "simple, routine, repetitive work, and should avoid crowds, only occasionally interacting with the general public." Tr. 659.

At Step Four, the ALJ concluded Plaintiff is not capable of performing her past relevant work. Tr. 662.

At Step Five, the ALJ found Plaintiff can perform jobs that exist in significant numbers in the national economy. Tr. 663. Accordingly, the ALJ found Plaintiff is not disabled.

DISCUSSION

Plaintiff contends the ALJ erred when he (1) failed to find Plaintiff's chronic pain syndrome to be severe at Step Two; (2) improperly rejected Plaintiff's testimony; (3) improperly rejected the opinion of Bette Seagren, treating nurse practitioner (NP); and (4) improperly found at Step Five that Plaintiff could perform other jobs in the national economy.

I. The alleged error by the ALJ at Step Two was harmless.

At Step Two the claimant is not disabled if the Commissioner determines the claimant does not have any medically severe impairment or combination of impairments. Stout, 454 F.3d at 1052. See also 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1509, 404.1520(a)(4)(ii). A severe impairment "significantly limits" a claimant's "physical or mental ability to do basic work activities." 20 C.F.R. § 404.1521(a). See also Ukolov, 420 F.3d at 1003. The ability to do basic work activities is defined as "the abilities and aptitudes necessary to do most jobs." 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1521(a), (b). Such abilities and aptitudes include walking, standing, sitting, lifting, pushing, pulling, reaching, carrying, handling, seeing, hearing, speaking; understanding, carrying out, and remembering simple instructions; using judgment; responding appropriately to supervision, co-workers, and usual work situations; and dealing with changes in a routine work setting. Id.

As noted, the ALJ found Plaintiff has the severe impairments of chronic pulmonary insufficiency and lumbar degenerative disc disease. Plaintiff, however, asserts the ALJ erred at Step Two when he did not find Plaintiff's alleged impairment of chronic pain disorder are severe.

The Ninth Circuit has held when the ALJ has resolved Step Two in a claimant's favor, any error in designating specific impairments as severe does not prejudice a claimant at Step Two. Burch v. Barnhart, 400 F.3d 676, 682 (9th Cir. 2005)(any error in omitting an impairment from the severe impairments identified at Step Two was harmless when Step Two was resolved in claimant's favor). Because the ALJ resolved Step Two in Plaintiff's favor, the Court concludes any error by the ALJ in failing to identify another alleged impairment as severe is harmless.

II. The ALJ gave clear and convincing reasons for rejecting Plaintiff's testimony.

Plaintiff alleges the ALJ erred when he failed to give clear and convincing reasons for rejecting Plaintiff's testimony.

In Cotton v. Bowen, the Ninth Circuit established two requirements for a claimant to present credible symptom testimony: The claimant must produce objective medical evidence of an impairment or impairments, and he must show the impairment or combination of impairments could reasonably be expected to produce some degree of symptom. Cotton, 799 F.2d 1403, 1407 (9th Cir. 1986). The claimant, however, need not produce objective medical evidence of the actual symptoms or their severity. Smolen, 80 F.3d at 1284.

If the claimant satisfies the above test and there is not any affirmative evidence of malingering, the ALJ can reject the claimant's pain testimony only if he provides clear and convincing reasons for doing so. Parra v. Astrue, 481 F.3d 742, 750 (9th Cir. 2007)(citing Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 834 (9th Cir. 1995)). General assertions that the claimant's testimony is not credible are insufficient. Id. The ALJ must identify "what testimony is not credible and what evidence undermines the claimant's complaints." Id. (quoting Lester, 81 F.3d at 834).

The ALJ found Plaintiff has "underlying medical conditions that could reasonably result in the symptoms she alleges if she failed to follow her medical regimen or attempted to exceed her residual functional capacity." Tr. 660. The ALJ, however, found Plaintiff's testimony about the intensity, persistence, and limiting effects of her symptoms "are disproportionate and not supported by the objective medical findings or any other corroborating evidence." Tr. 660. The ALJ noted Plaintiff received treatment for her symptoms, but "the treatment has been essentially routine and/or conservative in nature, and has been generally successful in controlling [her] symptoms." Tr. 660. The ALJ pointed out that an EMG/nerve conduction study of Plaintiff was negative for lumbar radiculopathy. In addition, an MRI of Plaintiff's back was essentially negative, and a CT myelogram was "negative for demonstrable treatable lesion." Tr. 660. In addition, Plaintiff's lumbar MRI showed only mild degenerative changes at L4-5 without any canal or foraminal narrowing. Tr. 660. Fredrick Waller, M.D., examining neurosurgeon, stated in September 2002 that he "would consider [Plaintiff's MR imaging of her lumbar and thoracic spines] to look better than most 41-year old MR scans that I've seen." Tr. 239. The ALJ pointed out that the notes of Plaintiff's doctor regarding office visits "reflect numerous occasions on which [Plaintiff] did not specify any particular complaint and relatively infrequent trips to the doctor for the allegedly disabling symptoms." The ALJ also noted even though Plaintiff testified she was unable to seek treatment or to obtain medications due to a lack of funds, the record does not reflect Plaintiff visited emergency rooms or free or low-cost clinics "that exist in [her] area" or attempted to "use one of the many programs to provide prescription medications to persons of limited means." Tr. 660.

Plaintiff, however, points out that the record reflects she went to the emergency room 12 times because of the pain she was experiencing. The Court notes, however, that nine of those visits occurred outside of the relevant period and during the time Plaintiff was still working. The three remaining visits were in December 2002 and were related to a fall Plaintiff suffered that same month.

On this record the Court finds the ALJ provided clear and convincing reasons supported by substantial evidence in the record for finding Plaintiff's testimony not entirely credible as to the intensity, persistence, and limiting effects of her conditions. The Court, therefore, concludes the ALJ did not err when he rejected Plaintiff's testimony in part.

III. The ALJ did not err when he did not give significant weight to the June 24, 2003, opinion of NP Seagren.

Plaintiff contends the ALJ erred when he did not give significant weight to the June 24, 2003, opinion of NP Seagren that Plaintiff was only able to sit on her left hip, could not sit for more than five or ten minutes, could stand only ten or fifteen minutes without fatigue, could lift ten pounds, cannot travel, and suffered chronic pain syndrome. Tr. 319.

Medical sources are divided into two categories: "acceptable" and "not acceptable." 20 C.F.R. § 416.902. Acceptable medical sources include licensed physicians and psychologists. 20 C.F.R. § 416.902. Medical sources classified as "not acceptable" include, but are not limited to, nurse practitioners, therapists, licensed clinical social workers, and chiropractors. SSR 06-03p, at *2. The Social Security Administration notes:

With the growth of managed health care in recent years and the emphasis on containing medical costs, medical sources who are not acceptable medical sources, such as nurse practitioners, physician assistants, and licensed clinical social workers, have increasingly assumed a greater percentage of the treatment and evaluation functions previously handled primarily by physicians and psychologists. Opinions from these medical sources, who are not technically deemed acceptable medical sources under our rules, are important and should be evaluated on key issues such as impairment severity and functional effects, along with the other relevant evidence in the file.

SSR 06-03p, at *3. Factors the ALJ should consider when determining the weight to give an opinion from those "important" sources include: the length of time the source has known the claimant and the number of times and frequency that the source has seen the claimant; the consistency of the source's opinion with other evidence in the record; the relevance of the source's opinion; the quality of the source's explanation of his opinion; and the source's training and expertise. SSR 06-03p, at *4. On the basis of the particular facts and the above factors, the ALJ may assign a not-acceptable medical source either greater or lesser weight than that of an acceptable medical source. SSR 06-03p, at *5-*6. The ALJ, however, must explain the weight assigned to such sources to the extent that a claimant or subsequent reviewer may follow the ALJ's reasoning. SSR 06-03p, at *6.

The ALJ did not give significant weight to NP Seagren's opinion because she "relied quite heavily on the subjective report of symptoms and limitations provided by [Plaintiff] and seemed to uncritically accept as true most, if not all, of what [Plaintiff] reported." Tr. 661. The ALJ also found NP Seagren's opinion rested in part on a diagnosis of chronic pain syndrome, which is "an impairment outside her area of expertise." Tr. 661. Finally, the ALJ noted NP Seagren's opinion was brief and conclusory.

The Court concludes on this record that the ALJ did not err when he gave little weight to NP Seagren's opinion because he provided legally sufficient reasons for doing so.

IV. The ALJ did not err at Step Five.

Plaintiff contends the ALJ erred at Step Five when he found Plaintiff could perform other jobs in the national economy because the ALJ failed to consider the limitations indicated by Plaintiff and NP Seagren in his decision. Because the Court has found the ALJ properly rejected Plaintiff's testimony in part and properly assigned little weight to the opinion of NP Seagren, the Court concludes the ALJ did not err at Step Five when he failed to include the limitations indicated by Plaintiff and NP Seagren in his assessment of Plaintiff's ability to do other jobs existing in the national economy.

CONCLUSION

For these reasons, the Court AFFIRMS the decision of the Commissioner and DISMISSES this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED this 14th day of September, 2011.
